

Abstract

A canned pet food product made up of two phases. The product has an outer, tubular phase which is substantially solid and which extends from the lower end to the upper end of the product and an inner phase which extends from the lower end to the upper end of the product within the bore of the tubular outer phase. Both phases are made up of an edible source of carbohydrate and protein. However, the inner phase has an appearance different from that of the outer phase.

10

15

20

25

30 BMc 9/12/98